

AVAILABLE NOW! The Spiritual Side of the Sex Conversation

This is a great resource for parents to process through for assistance with this conversation from a Biblical perspective.

The parent training's that I offer are very in-depth. If you've attended one I think you would agree. Due to the intensity of the conversation it's truly not possible for me to fully provide the spiritual or the Biblical components of this message in the allotted time. So, I've created a 15-page PDF that will act as a solid resource for parents to lean into during their everyday conversations with their teens.

Here's a brief description of the topics covered:

- The Biblical purpose of sex is multifaceted
- Scripture does not connect sex to guilt
- Sex is God-ordained and God-given
- Our identity is in Christ
- Sex is good
- Sex is more than just physical
- Sex is intimacy
- What if I've had sex and I'm not married?
- But sexual sin is so tempting
- Feelings aren't reliable
- God wants to bless us
- God wants us to be spiritually healthy
- God wants us to be physically healthy
- God wants us to be emotionally healthy
- God calls us to show consideration and respect to others
- God wrote the definition for love
- God doesn't necessarily remove the consequences
- God has a perfect plan for our lives
- God wants us to be Jesus with skin on
- God places red flags and warning signs in our life for our own good
- How far can I go?
- Does saving sex guarantee great sex?
- God shows us grace
- We need to pray!
- We have to talk!

Now, if you know me, you are already laughing, because I used the word brief. As you can see, for those who don't know me, my definition of "brief" might be a little more intense than your definition of brief. ☺

Yes! There is a fee for this resource. It's only $10.00, which is extremely generous. To purchase it online go to www.tlcconsultantsinc.com. You will see access to the resource on the right side bar. Once you make the payment, you will automatically receive a response that includes a link with the resource in a PDF format.

If you would like to purchase this and receive a hard copy, please send me a check for $10.00 made out to TLC Consultants Inc. Please include your address and I will send you a hard copy of the resource.
